Chicago, Sept. 24 -A dispatch from Ottawa to the Daily News amounces a decision on the petition filed some time ago in the Supreme court in the Storey-will contest by Mrs Eureks C. Storey, widow of the late Withur F. Storey, owner of the Chicago Times. The petition was tog a mandamus to compel Judge. Knicketbocker, of the Probate art, to probate the will of 1879, and by the lecision of the Supreme court the petition is denied. The decision is considered a serious defeat for Mrs. Storey, as it postpones almost indefinitely a trial of the questions involved.

It will be remembered that Judge Knickerbocker refused to hear evidence on the will of 1879 until the will of 1881, which wes filed for probate first, should be disposed of. Probate of the will of 1881 was refused on the me grounds.

the Unexpected Result of Yesterday's Balloting at Saratoga-The Ticket Completed and the Concention Adjourned-Satisfaction with the Nominations.

[From Morning Edition.] Sanatoga, Sept. 23.—Affairs took an unxpected turn in the republican state convention today, when Ira S. Davenport was nominated for governor. It was a complete surprise to everyone. It was the general opinion that Carr would be nominated, be having taken such a beavy lead in the first ballot last night. Therefore it was with unmixed surprise that the result of the first ballot, in which Davenport took a good lead over Carr, was received. Davenport was cominated on the second ballot. The nomination is regarded among politicians here as a remarkably strong one, and it is the general sentiment that the rest of the ticket is made up of good selections.

This morning the convention assembled at 10:30. Prayer was offered by the chaplain and ex-Assemblyman David Healey, of Mon roe, addressed the convention in behalf of the labor cause. He was received with great ap-plause. He urged the convention to nominste a man known to be devoted to the cause of the workingmen. He spoke with power and was trequently interrupted with applause. The committee on resolutions then read the platform, which was unanimously adopted.

Balloting for the gubernatorial nomination

then began. From the star it was seen that the contest was between Carr and Davenport, the latter receiving the strength of ex-Gover-nor Cornell's support. The first ballot re-su ted as tollows: Davenport, 214; Carr, 194; Seward, 54; Bliss, 66; Warren, 130; Morton, 8; Evarts 1; Swinburne, 29; Drexel, 12; Cornell, 2. Total number of votes cas 3; necessary to a choice, 347.

The second bailot resulted in the nomina ion of Its S. Davenport, the present state comptroller. He received the votes of the Drexel delegates, and his nomination was made onanimous amid tumultuous applause General Carr was unanimously nominated for lieutenant-governor, and another stormy cene took place. The ticket was then completed as tollow: The ticket was then completed as follows, by acclamation: For comptroller, James W. Wadsworth, of Livingson county; for secretary of state, Geo. Anson S. Wood, of Franklin county; for attorney general, Edward B. Thomas; for state treasurer, Major Charles Ulrich, of New York; for state engineer and surveyor, Wm. P. Von Rensslaer. The convention adjourned sine die at

They took him bome and entertained him handsomely on that hight, and he returned to the fair on Friday morning with Mrs. J., her behand remaining at home. The sharper took Mrs. Jamison around the grounds, and did all in his power to keep her at the fair as long as no sible Mr. Jamison was tound speculess and dying. and a convess of the case leads to a firm con viction that he was drugged. On Thursday Jamison went to a friend and accured en-dorsement of a note for $2,500, which he immediately easted at the First National bank. No trace whatever is obtainable of that money, and it is believed that he was beaten out of it by the swindler or a confederate.

A postmortem is now holding on the body, which was exhumed at the family's request. The excitement is intense.

The young woman left Dougsl's Saturday to visit friends in Mansfield, int nding to re-turn on Monday. Not coming at all to work, search for her began this morning, and at a point about a mile from Dougal's, in a ravine, the body was found. The remains showed marks of violence. In the back of her right eas there was a bullet wound. The ground for some distance gare evidence of a hard struggle. The girl was 23 years of age and quite handsome. The affair is still a been arrested.

for a Disreputable Black Man. [From Morning Edition.]

WEST ALEXANDER, PA., Sept. 23 .- A mor ensational love affair, involving a young white woman living near this place and a coal black negro of Wheeling, came to light to-day with the arrival of the Wheeling papers. The woman's name is Fiora Caldwell. Her lover is one Dennis Gardner, a negro of bad reputation in Wheeling, frequently figuriog in the police courts for drunkenness and o her offenses. Seme time ago the two met, and an unaccountable intimacy sprang up between them. The girl frequently wrote to the negro in the mort endearing terms, asking him for money, and begging him to come to this place and take her away with him. A week ago her cousin intercepted a letter from the negro, and two of them went to Wheeling to kill him. Dennis, however, was in the city prison, and they could not get at him. Ber parents and relatives determined to send her to Texas on a visit, out of reach of the negro, and accordingly she started. She, however, remoded ingly she started. She, however, persuaded them to allow her to stop at Short Creek, ten miles north of Wheeling, and while there, on Monday last, she wrote to the negro, saking him to come there and take her to Wheeling

A part of the letter is as follows:

DEAREST DEXNIS: There is now but one chance. Uncle and sunt have conserted to let me stop at the home of my childhood to visit a sick cousin. Dearest Denois, will you not come for me, as this is our last chance? Come Priday afternoon. Meet me at the old mill at half past nine in the evening. Have your conveyance at the bridge, and come up your conveyance at the bringe, and come up the hollow till you come to a big willow tree, then stop and whistle three times, and I will be there. Be sure and get me the best house in Wheeling. Oh, Denuis dear, don't fail to come at the time appointed. Now is our time or never. Be sure and don't forget the time, hall-past time. Yours as ever. FLORA CALDWELL

Dennis failed to respond to this appeal, and the girl again wrote to him, telling him she would be in Wheeling last evening. was overjoyed at the prospect of meeting the girl; but trouble again came up in the shape of the two cousins. Determined not to be thwarted, however, Dennis procured a big evolver, and announced his determination of killing some one, which remark came to the ears of the Wheeling police, and he was locked up, while the girl was intercepted in her flight. The girl comes of a respectable family, and it is strange how she could have fallen in love with a negro.

Young Men Who Carry News of a Legacy and Demand Fees. [From Morning Edition.]

New York, Sept. 23.-Ellen Dunn, of 427 West Twenty-fifth street, complained to the police recently that two young men had called at her house representing themselves as employees at the surrogate's office. They were dapper little fellows, and one of them carried a leather hand bag full of papers. He produced a paper and told her that there was a legacy of several hundred dollars awaiting ber at the surrogate's office. She would be required to pay them $3 for their fees and for the expense of hunting her up. She paid it, and the men told her that if she would be at the surrogate's office the next day at a certain time they would be there and advise her what course to pursue. She went and found that no legacy awaited her. The young men, of course, were not there.
Frank Gillis and William Edwards, who had been seen loitering about the corridors of the court-house, were arrested, and were taken yesterday before Justice Doffy at the Tombs, and discharged. Mrs. Dunn did not recog-nize them. At the Surrogate's office is is said that there is a large number of young fellows engaged at the same swindling operation. JONES - CURRIER - In Brooklyn, Sept. 15, by the Rev. A. J. Canteld, Mr. A. W. urrier, of Detroit, Mich., to Miss Catherine K. Jones, of Hempstead. No cards. Mr. Currier came to Hempstead last spring

He was in shabby clothing and in need o money for a night's lodging. Livery Stable Keeper John Pettitt let Mr. Carrier sleep in his barn. For several nights Mr. Currier returned to the stable to sleep, By day he went about the village and picked up a few cents doing odd bits of work. He said he was a crayon artist, and that he could reproduce and enlarge photographs. He con-tinued, however, to make both ends meet by excavating cellars, sifting gravel, and doing all sorts of chores. In the long summer evenings he visited barrooms, and made sketches left them by their parents. With the house they were left suffi-cient money to maintain it in comfort and move that may be made by her brother against her husband. Mrs. Currier is tall and spare, about thirty years old, and is said to have accomplished everything she ever set out to do, except kill herself. After her mother's death she at-tempted to commit suicide by taking Paris green. The spothecary around the corner was called in time to save her life. Mr. Cur-rier is twenty-four years o'd, has brisk, busi-

our Deputy Collectors Mysteriously Dis-

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 23 .- Last Sunday night Deputy Collector R. M. Green, with an armed posse of twelve men, left here on a raid on the Carroll county moonshiners. Monday night he captured two stills, the first of them at Mock, where he left four men in charge. The second one was some eight miles further on, and there he had a sharp light. After destroying the property he returned to Mack to find that the guards and stills were gone. Whether they were foully dealt with or left of their own accord was not known, and Green started in sea ch
